

HOME FORGE REMODELING

Home Forge Remodeling brings a new perspective to an old industry. We are committed to bringing you the highest quality workmanship while respecting your time and your home. After working with you to design your project, our staff handles the ordering of all materials, oversees the delivery of all items before work begins in your home, and remains fully engaged as the project moves to completion.

Traditional remodeling puts homeowners out of their kitchen or bath for an average of 8 to 16 weeks; Home Forge's team moves from demolition to completion in an average 3.5 weeks, ensuring you more time with a functional room. This truly sets us apart as your remodeler of choice.

Since our core craftspeople are full-time employees rather than subcontractors, you are assured a conscientious group of people dedicated to your project from start to finish. Our approach allows Home Forge to deliver total quality work on a well defined and concise schedule. We are happy to put you in touch with our past clients so you can assess for yourself these two key elements of our service.

Home Forge can help you with your project, from single room renovations all the way up to large home additions.

ABOUT THE KITCHEN

This is the newly designed kitchen of Martha and Sean Cook. Martha and Sean approached Home Forge Remodeling to recreate their kitchen and to better incorporate it into both the adjacent living room and to the future outdoor entertainment area in their yard. Being a gourmet cook, Sean also needed to bring functionality and style together. The result is this striking contemporary kitchen, complete with new French doors leading out to the planned outdoor kitchen and pool area as well as a much improved overall functionality, beautiful finishes and dramatic lighting.

The kitchen was originally divided into two distinct areas separated by a peninsula. Home Forge reconfigured the space to unite the breakfast area with the main kitchen. A seldom-used butler's pantry was eliminated to create more useable space, and a wall separating the kitchen from the living room was removed to bring in light and unite the two rooms. The new kitchen features a large island as its centerpiece and a strategically placed bar that work extraordinarily well for both cooking and entertaining. The central cooking area allows for easy accessibility to large and small appliances, while the entertaining area wraps around it and allows interaction with guests and family.

Warm wood tones on the cabinetry soften the room and are enhanced by natural cork flooring. Mink-colored glass brick backsplash tiles add a dynamic element to the space, which is all set off with functional and interesting lighting. Hidden under-cabinet fixtures, recessed ceiling lighting and the highly-styled, remarkable "artichoke" pendants are also elements that make this kitchen unique, both as a design and renovation project and as a reflection of the Cook family's lifestyle.

The recently completed renovation only took five weeks to complete making the Cook's vision of a wonderful new kitchen a reality.
